Are you considering a career in academia, or a leading position in a museum, research facility, or an international organization?

The new Ph.D. program on the Conservation of Material Culture (CMC) is your pathway to success. The CMC Ph.D. is a highly cross-disciplinary and multidisciplinary program at the interface between scientific and humanistic fields, focusing on original and translational research, global exchange, strong leadership, and public engagement and on a strong understanding of pressing and emerging regional and global issues in the conservation, sustainability, accessibility and display of material culture.

APPLY NOW for admissions in fall 2019!
